Fund Summary

The investment objective of the Sub-Fund is to generate capital growth mainly through exposure to the development, advancement and use of technology. The Sub-Fund will be invested in global technology equities some of which are familiarised by the acronym "FAANG" defining the most well-known technology equities. Apart from the FAANG equities, the Sub-Fund will also invest in other large technology stocks. Up to 100% of the assets of the Sub-Fund may be invested in equities. The Sub-Fund is expected to invest in companies which should benefit from the development, advancement and use of technology and communication services and equipment. The Sub-Fund will have no bias towards a particular geographic sector but may be biased towards securities within the technology, communication, computer software, media and information services and semiconductors and semiconductor equipment sector.

Fund Manager

Despite the uncertainty of Omicron, all three major US averages recorded gains for December with the Dow Jones outpacing the S&P and Nasdaq. Right from the start of the year markets have been in a steady upward trend but leadership has shifted as 2021 progressed. As vaccines were rolled out early in 2021, optimism of a reopening drove gains in economically sensitive sectors. However, a new wave of COVID-19 interrupted the recovery and paused global growth. As a result, the outperformance of sectors benefitting from the reopening reversed around May, when the 10-year yield peaked, and growth and technology stocks regain leadership. The advance was narrow with roughly 65% of the Nasdaq's gains came from five stocks – Microsoft, Google, Apple, Nvidia and Tesla. Treasury yields advanced in December and posted gains for the year but never reached the levels projected by analysts or slowed the advance of equities. Commodities outperformed other assets in 2021, as the recovery from the pandemic boosted demand.

The Castlestone FAANG+ UCITS fund finished a volatile year with a positive performance in December. Broadcom was the fund's top performing holding in December, while Nvidia Corp led the fund for the year. The funds positive yearly performance was driven by the Information Technology sector. The funds top holdings are Apple, Facebook, Alphabet (Google), Netflix Inc and Amazon.com.
