Manager Comment

US equities delivered mixed results in a volatile October. Concerns about spending on artificial intelligence infrastructure fueled a sharp technology selloff late in the month. Mega-cap technology earnings and a weak chipmaker outlook weighed on the Nasdaq and S&P 500, while a shift toward traditional value sectors helped the Dow Jones post a monthly gain. U.S. Treasury yields moved sharply lower in the month, finishing October with their biggest monthly decline since late 2023. A late-month flight to safety triggered by a tech stock sell-off and broader geopolitical risk drove investors into bonds. Oil prices surged over the month and gold weakened.

The Castlestone Low Volatility UCITS Fund traded lower over the month in line with the general direction of the market. Oracle, McDonald's, Pepsi, and Verizon were all removed from the fund in October to rebalance the portfolio. Eli Lilly was the fund's top performing holding.

Fund Objective

The investment objective of the Sub-Fund is to generate capital growth from the equity market whilst maintaining in aggregate lower volatility relative to the broader US equity market. The Sub-Fund is expected to invest mainly in the US equity market with focus on equities listed by issuers domiciled or with country of risk being the United States of America. In aggregate, the fund will seek for these investments to have lower volatility characteristics relative to the broader U.S. equity market. Up to 100% of the assets of the Sub-Fund may be invested in equities. The Sub-Fund is however not expected to have any specific industry, market capitalisation or market sector bias
